

Food Glorious Food!

Winter 2019/20

news

What is a nutrient? It is an element in food that is of good value in the diet.

Carbohydrates are great for energy but those pets prone to gaining extra kilos, then too much may prove a rather weighty issue. Foods lower in magnesium may benefit cats with urinary problems, and if your dog suffers from an allergy condition, after a thorough examination, it might be found that a dietary change could be the answer. Weight loss, diarrhoea, low energy levels and obesity are just a few signs that may indicate your pet's diet is incorrect, however there are other conditions that can display these signs, so it is always best for your pet to have a check-up.

Treats Well we all like giving those to our pets, and providing there are no medical conditions prohibiting treats from their diet, it is usually okay, BUT these should always be of good quality and included as part of their daily quantity of food. There are many shops and supermarkets selling an array of treats from bones to chews, and some may be imported from abroad. Please be very careful with your choice, as there have been reports of pets becoming seriously ill after eating certain treats, and sadly some cases have been fatal.

Prescription diets are available for many types of medical conditions, also for age, breed and size, so for more information just give our team a call so they can help you 'balance' your pet's diet.

A big part of the forthcoming festive season is that wonderful and scrumptious side..... the food! For our pets though, there is no special time for food, as dinner is probably the highlight of their day, whatever the time of year, but are you feeding your furry friend the correct diet?

So Many to Choose Yes, it can all be rather confusing! Is this one right for my dog? What are those green bits in it? Will my cat like the jelly? Dry or wet food? Carbs, minerals, proteins, fats, vitamins.....help!

The most important point is to ensure your pet is fed a balanced diet that suits their age, breed, size and any medical conditions. This will help keep your pet active, healthy and maintain a correct weight, while still containing the vital nutrients needed.

What do we mean by a balanced diet? This is a correct mix of nutrients in the food to suit a pet's individual requirements.

Winter Hazards As winter nights draw in, it's important for pet owners to know how they can keep their pets safe and avoid winter hazards. There are lots of hidden hazards around homes, gardens and streets that could harm curious paws.

Here are some things to watch out for:

Antifreeze & de-icer These are often used to stop cars icing up in winter but they are very toxic for pets. Cats are most at risk from antifreeze because they like the sweet taste it has. Keep antifreeze out of the reach of pets and mop up any spills.

Salt and Grit The salt and grit we use on roads in winter can irritate pet's paws. It can also be toxic if they lick their paws clean. If you use salt around your home, choose a pet-safe product. Wash your pet's paws if they come into contact with salt and grit.

Cars Cats often shelter under cars in cold and wet weather. Before you get in, always check your car for visitors who may have climbed up inside the engine.

Poisonous Plants Festive favourites like holly, ivy and poinsettia are all toxic to pets if they eat them. Keep them out of your pet's reach or use artificial plants to decorate your home.

Festive Food Lots of our winter treats raisins, chocolate, alcohol – are toxic to pets. It's tempting to give your pet a festive treat but stick to ones meant for pets, but make sure they don't overeat!

Fireworks are popular throughout the winter months, but are often a major cause of stress in pets. We do offer several calming remedies for pets, and it may be useful to keep one of these handy.

If you would like more information on Winter Hazards for your pets, give us a call and we will be happy to advise you!

It's a busy and fun time for all, but please spare a few minutes to take note of our helpful reminders for pet happy festivities!

MAKE sure your dog is on a lead when walking close to frozen ponds and rivers.

EXERCISE pets regularly over the festive season, it's part of their routine healthcare.

ROCKETS & fireworks can cause some pets much distress but we have plenty of help and advice.

RECHARGEABLE and regular batteries are extremely dangerous if chewed or swallowed by your pet.

YOUR fairy lights are very pretty, but watch out for pets chewing at wires and plugs.

CHOCOLATE contains theobromine, which is poisonous to dogs and cats. Store it out of their reach.

HELP our feathered friends in winter. Keep the wild bird table topped up.

REMIND visiting guests who are on medication to store it carefully. While you eat your turkey dinner, your pet could be munching Aunt Ethel's pills!

IF your pet falls ill when the surgery is closed, call our emergency service.

SUPERVISE all pets near open fires and log burners.

TURKEY carcass bones are sharp when broken and can get lodged in the throat and stomach. Please do not feed them to your pet!

MINCE PIES contain raisins, which can be toxic to dogs if ingestedgrapes too.

ANTIFREEZE for cars tastes sweet to pets but is potentially fatal if swallowed. Please clear away any spills and don't let your pet drink from puddles.

SMALL PETS living outside require extra warm dry bedding, regular checks and unfrozen drinking water. Ensure hutches are rain and draught proof.

Rabbits Don't Just Eat Carrots!

Overgrown teeth are no fun for your rabbit. They might have been okay for cartoon character Bugs Bunny, but in real life, this condition can be very painful for your pet!

Bunnies' teeth grow continuously!

The grinding, chewing and rotary action of the upper and lower teeth while eating, help wear down the length.

If fed an incorrect diet or the teeth are misaligned, problems can occur.

An important part of your rabbit's diet is hay and grass, which help grind down the teeth and provide a high source of fibre to assist the digestive system. Feed your rabbit an all in one pellet too, as this will stop your pet picking out just the tasty bits from a mix and leaving the essential nutritious bits behind!

A limited amount of fresh fruit and veg is okay, but if you would like advice, pop your bunny along for an appointment where we can check the teeth, and also discuss what is the best diet to help stop dental problems occurring. If you have noticed any signs of weight loss, unable to chew, not eating, nasal discharge, runny eyes, or drooling then we need to look at your rabbit without delay.

Bad Behaviour?!

Our pets give us great joy and happiness, but if a behavioural problem occurs, the pleasure can turn to desperation. No matter what you do, nothing is working! The behavioural problem escalates and you are at the end of your tether! In your pet's view, they are not too happy either, as behavioural issues can mean that your dog or cat is struggling with a problem. Humans can talk through their worries, but our pets show their feelings through behaviour, like wagging their tail when they are happy. When something is wrong, the 'behavioural speech' displayed can sometimes be misunderstood, and labelled as 'bad behaviour'.

What are they trying to tell you? Behind a behavioural problem, there can be an underlying cause. The key is to identify and understand what triggers it to help rectify the actions.

The Wrecked Living Room!
Torn Cushions - Soiled Carpet
Paintwork Scratched
The dog is panting and agitated.
This destructive behaviour could be the signs of 'separation anxiety'.
The pet has become very dependent on one person, and when he or she goes out, the fear of separation is too much.
Panic triggers a complete melt down, resulting in the living room disaster!

Oh No! A cat sprays to mark out their territory. Outside this is acceptable behaviour, but indoors it is not. Cats do not like change, they prefer a safe routine lifestyle. When this is threatened, anxiousness sets in. An attempt is made to defend their safe territory and life by spray marking. Is there a new cat on the block? Moving house, or a new baby can also upset your cat's routine.

Help is Available Behavioural problems can be just ripping cushions to major aggression, but there is no need for you or your pet to suffer. Discussing the difficulties will be the first step forward to resolving the problem. Please call us for further information.

Order Early

For some the festive plans are underway, so just a reminder that if your pet requires medication or other pet supplies over the holiday season, please do order well in advance. The surgery and our suppliers' opening hours vary during this period, so please call us with your order to ensure a full cupboard before Christmas Eve!
